Other Journals of the American Schools of Oriental Research

Biblical Archaeologist is an illustrated quarterly magazine that has been published continuously since 1937. Intended to bridge the gap between the academic specialist and the general-interest reader, BA seeks to combine scholarly reliability with readability.

Journal of Cuneiform Studies was founded in 1947. JCS presents technical articles on the history and languages of the ancient Mesopotamian and Anatolian literate cultures. Articles appear in English, French, and German. JCS is issued biannually.

ASOR Newsletter communicates news to ASOR members and other interested parties, including announcements of various scholarly seminars and fellowship opportunities. A quarterly publication, it also includes summaries of recent ASOR activities.
